Property Tax Extensions Granted to North Alabama Counties Struck by Snow and Ice Storms

Montgomery, Jan. 3, 2001—State Revenue Commissioner Michael L. Patterson issued an order late Tuesday granting an automatic Alabama property tax filing and payment extension to taxpayers located in several north Alabama counties which declared road closings and courthouse closings on Jan. 2, 2001, due to recent snow and ice storms.

The property tax filing and payment extension runs through Jan. 3, 2001. As of late Tuesday, the Revenue Department had been notified that the following counties were affected by road closings or courthouse closings: Colbert, DeKalb, Jackson, Lawrence, Limestone, Madison and Marshall. Other north Alabama counties may also be included in the extension order as determined necessary by the county tax-collecting official. The department received reports from several north Alabama counties, including Jefferson County, that reported courthouse openings on January 2, but with limited staffing, as many county workers were unable to report to their jobs because of road closings and hazardous road conditions.

The extension order allows taxpayers in the affected counties an additional day to pay their property taxes without penalty to the proper county tax-collecting official.
